A STREET IN CONSTANTINOPLE.

A correspondent of the London Daily Telegraph, writing from Constantinople, says:— "Spice of its dirt and squalor, the Grande Rue is interesting. It is the scene of a movement almost unexampled in Europe. Turks and Greeks, Albanians, Armenians, Circassians, Nubians, Arabs, Maltese, English, French, Russians, Germans, all the nationalities of the world, in fact, help to make up its population.
Over its rough, stony surface pass up and down a ceaseless stream of humanity, now forced for a moment to stop, that the carriage of some Grand Pasha, with its out riders, may find a passage; now giving way to a body of Turkish soldiers, who march as if they were flying in disorder from a field of battle; now driven pell mell before a dashing officer on horseback, who never dreams of drawing rein, although women and children are in helpless confusion before him; and now fighting their way between the uncouth wheels of a timber-laden vehicle, drawn by buffaloes, whose spreading and pointed horns threaten to transfix the poor pedestrian, it by chance he escapes being crushed beneath the burden they are hauling. Here comes a jolting hack, discipated with the title of carriage, filled with Turkish women, in blue and pink silks, their faces covered by the muslin folds of the yashmaks. If you can get a good look at them en passant you will not be fascinated by their beauty, for the half-veil, although most seduc-tive, is not worn so thin as to scarcely to conceal the thick noses, gross lips and baby faces of these beauties of the harem. They are "going shopping"—probably to purchase French jewelry at double its value to adorn their persons for the benefit of the Pasha, their master, and their fellow associates of the harem, for, excepting these, no society do they enjoy. Here, in contrast to them; are some Turkish women on foot, accompanied by their servant, a fat old black woman, who is also concealing her Nubian loveliness beneath a yashmak of snowy muslin.
These, perhaps, are the wives or concubines of a tradesman, or they would not be on foot.
They are wrapped in furs, or a flowing matles, of brightly dyed cotton cloth—purple and green and crimson—the effect of which, with their yellow slippers, is very picturesque. They turn upon a man, and least of all upon a "dog of a Christian," would be a most unhallowed proceeding."

LEARN A TRADE.

I never look at my old steel composing rule that I do not bless myself that while my strength lasts, I am not on the mere of the world. If my pen is not wanted, I can go back to the type case and be sure to find work; for I learned the printer's trade thoroughly—newspaper work, book-work, job work, and press work. I am glad I have got a good trade.
It is a rock on which the possessor can stand firmly. There is health and vigor for both body and mind in an honest trade. It is the strongest part of a self-made man. Go from the academy to the printing office or to the artisan's bench, or, if you please to the farm—for, to be sure, true farming is a trade and a great one at that. Lay thus a true foundation, and after that branch off into whatever profession you please. You have heard, perhaps, of the clerk who had faithfully served Stephen Girard from boyhood to manhood. On the twenty-first anniversary of his birthday he went to his master and told him his time was up, and he certainly expected important promotion in the merchant's service. But Stephen Girard said to him: "Very well. Now go and learn a trade." "What trade, sir?" "Good barrels and butts must be in demand while you live. Go and learn a cooper's trade; and when you have made a perfect barrel bring it to me." The young man went a way and learned the trade, and in time brought to his old master a perfect barrel of his own make. Girard examined it, and gave the maker two thousand dollars for it, and said to him: "Now, sir, I want you in my counting-room; but henceforth you will not be dependent upon the whim of Stephen Girard. Let what will come you have a good trade always in reserve." The young man saw the wisdom and understood it. Years ago, when the middle-aged men of to-day were boys, Horace Greeley wrote:

"It is a great source of consolation to us that when the public shall be tired of us as editors, we can make a satisfactory livelihood setting type or farming, so that while our strength lasts ten thousand blockheads taking office at once as article they do not understand could not drive us into the poor house." And so many a poor man becomes truly independent.—Thurlow Wead.

Mrs. Gordon.—A Washington correspondent of the New Orleans Bulletin draws a charming picture of the wife of Senator Gordon, of Georgia:

"Over in the reserved gallery there sits a sweet little lady with a thin lace veil only half hiding her pretty little face. Her eyes are very bright and soft, always lighted with a charming smile; the forehead high-arched and broad, framed in by the rippling waves of soft brown hair. Always tastefully dressed, you will especially note the perfect gloving of the slender hands, and her graceful way of moving them. Every one who sees her asks who she is, and I can tell you. See, now, the gallery door opens, and General Gordon comes down to claim the proud welcome of his wife!
The best of it is that husband and wife, though they have been married many years, are yet like lovers; and if you want to see Mrs.
Gordon's eyes beam, her cheeks flush, and her lovely head poised itself with a still prouder self-assertive grace, just pretend that you don't know who she is, and praise the General to her hearing."

Eighty years hence, when a youth of fourteen summers asks his grandfather if he ever saw such a cold winter, and so much snow, the "oldest inhabitant" will place his hand on the boy's head, and reply: "My son, you should have lived in the winter of 18—75."

Beecher boasts that at the age of sixty two he can read the finest print without glasses; but he makes other people read a great deal of very coarse print.—Graphic.

J. H. ZEILIN & CO.,

Macon, Ga., and Philadelphia.

The symptoms of Liver Complaint are uneasiness and pain in the side. Sometimes the pain is in the shoulder, and is mistaken for rheumatism. The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness, bowels in general constive, sometimes alternating with lax.
The head is troubled with pain, and dull, heavy sensation, considerable loss of memory, accompanied with painful sensations in the back, and sometimes which ought to have been done. Often complaining of weakness, debility, and low spirits. Sometimes many of the above symptoms attend the disease, and at other times very few of them; but the liver is generally the organ most involved.

Nearly all diseases originate from Indigestion and Torpidity of the Liver, and relief is always anxiously sought after. If the Liver is regulated in its action, health is almost invariably secured. Want of action in the Liver causes Headache, Constipation, Jaundice, Pain in the Shoulders, Cough, Chills, Dizziness, Sour Stomach, bad taste in the mouth, bilious attacks, palpitation of the heart, depression of spirits, or the blues, and a hundred other symptoms, for which SIMMONS' LIVER REGULATOR is the best remedy that has ever been discovered. It acts mildly, effectually, and being a simple vegetable compound, can do no injury in any quantities that it may be taken. It is harmless in every way; it has been used for 40 years, and hundreds of the good and great from all parts of the country will vouch for its being the purest and best.

The Clergy.
"My wife and self have used the Regulator for years, and testify to its great virtues."—Rev.
J. R. Felder, Perry, Ga.

Ladies' Endorsement.
"I have given your medicine thorough trial, and in no case has it failed to give full satisfaction."—Ellen Mearns, Chatsworth, Fla.
